

Purely Business!

The columns of a newspaper represent a cash value. No publisher can afford to give advertising notices free any more than a merchant can give his customer free gifts of dry goods or shoes. A newspaper is a legitimate business concern. Its columns are its stock in trade, and advertisements should be paid for, no matter in what part of the paper they appear.

The Continued Calls

Upon THE LEADER for free notices have become so burdensome that we have decided to publish the following terms:

For Notices of Suppers.

For notices of suppers, or other public entertainments where a fee is charged, and for obituary notices, resolutions of respect, etc., THE LEADER will charge FIVE CENTS A LINE, and hereafter this will be the reasonable rate. This, however, is the maximum.

Does Not Include

Editorial meetings or Church services, which should not exceed ten lines.

Avoidance of Disputes.

Misunderstandings are unpleasant. The rate for Business Local in this paper is 10 cents a line for the first insertion and 5 cents a line for subsequent insertions. A customer orders a five-line local inserted in the paper, "I'll tell you when to take it out," he says to the bookkeeper. But he forgets all about it. The notice runs for two months—a controversy, followed probably by an angry dispute, and he is obliged to pay the bill. Let us obviate this trouble, so "I'll forget" notices will be accepted hereafter. Let us have a definite agreement at the outset and the termination will be pleasant to all around.

All matter for publication must be handed in before 9 o'clock in the morning of each day.

If you have friends visiting you, or if you are going away on a visit, please drop us a note to that effect.

HAD A GOOD TIME.

A KEG OF BEER—THE OHIO WILLOWS—ALL GOT DRUNK—ONE DROWNED.

A party composed of Kirk Gilbert, Bill Setters, Joe Bode, Sr., "Keno" Macs, John Geis and Clay Means secured a keg of beer yesterday afternoon and adjourned to the shade of the willows on the Ohio shore, opposite the lower distillery, to drink the beer and have a good time.

About the time the festivities were at their highest a man was seen rowing a light skiff down the river.

He was hailed and invited to participate.

The man, who proved to be a stranger to the crowd and who claimed Pittsburgh as his home, accepted the invitation, and was soon the drunkest one of the party.

He expressed a desire to come to this city, and, accompanied by Geis and Gilbert, they started to cross the river in the stranger's boat.

Gilbert claims that when they were near the middle of the river the stranger, in his drunken stupor, leaped too far to one side of the skiff, upsetting it and precipitating the occupants in the water.

Gilbert seized Geis by the hair and clung to the overturned boat until they were rescued, but the stranger quickly sank and was seen no more.

Gilbert also claims that the stranger, just before leaving the shore, remarked: "Boys, if I never reach the other side, the boat is yours."

The unknown was about 30 years of age, medium height, wore dark mustache and had a scar on the right side of his nose. When drowned he was in his shirt sleeves and wore dark trousers.

His skull bears the name of "Jesse R. P." and contained two fish nets. The boat and nets are in the possession of William Setters.

PROHIBITION PARADISE.

What Religious People Say of Drinking in Maine.

A convention of Evangelists recently held in Boston declared Maine to be the seat of Satan, and spoke of the state as in which rum was king. Drinking, the said, was the cause of all the evils, and the rule, and large sections had no Churches and buried the dead without prayer. These charges are not new; but it is deemed a virtue by a great many persons to cling to Prohibition as a principle if it ruins morals and crowds asylums for the insane.

It may be, however, that these Evangelists are plain every day liars; for we are assured by Prohibition cranks that Prohibition prohibits, and that where it exists there is and can be no whisky sold or drunk.

OLD BOARD RE-ELECTED.

It now develops that the machinery is to be removed to Huntington, W. Va.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED.

The Vanceburg Liar Adds Insult to Injury of an Old Citizen.

Portsmouth Tribune.

William Hardiman, aged 78, an old resident of Lewis county, Ky., met a terrible death by accident Thursday morning.

He had loaded a wagon with loose fence posts, and was on his way to Vanceburg, when, in going down the long hill that leads from Ecupia Springs into the bed of Salt Lick, the brake on the wagon came loose, throwing the old teamster to the ground, the hind wheels of the wagon passing over his head, killing him instantly. William Keith, who came along the road a short time after the accident had occurred, found the team standing at the foot of the hill, and after a short search the unfortunate driver was found near the top of the hill. He leaves a wife and several married children.

The Vanceburg correspondent of the Cincinnati papers, learning of the death of Hardiman, telegraphed a sensational story to the city papers that the old man had met his death at the hands of an assassin and that a bloody feud was imminent, when the truth was that the old man had not an enemy in the world, and met his death by accident.
